NOTES

Welcome to a new school year! This newsletter will be my way of communicating to you what your child is learning in class, and what is happening at school. This is a WEEKLY newsletter. You will be receiving one of these newsletters every Sunday night, or Monday, via email.

We have homework this week! Please look for it in backpack.

This week and next, I will be testing students on reading, math, and spelling in order to determine his/her starting level.

I am SO excited to be helping your child reach their highest potential this year!

WHAT WE ARE LEARNING

CLASSROOM/SCHOOL BEHAVIOR: We will go over the school/classroom rules, and create a “Bill of Classroom Rights.” If you ever have concerns about your child’s well-being at school, please don’t hesitate to see me, or email me.

MATH: We will start our routine of daily morning word problems by reviewing double and triple addition/subtraction with borrowing. We will also do morning sprints where I time the kids to see how fast they are able to add/subtract, multiply, or divide (depending on their readiness level).

ELA/WRITING: We will review what “Main Idea” is, and do some practice work in class (it’s also in the homework). We will choose one thing we did this summer, and write about it in detail. We will also be doing an “All About Me” poster.
